Wherein Ye Editor Gets In a Personal Word

One western editor has a novel way of increasing circulation. He published that he had been kissed by the prettiest woman in town and would announce her name to the world in his issue of one month off. He got dozens of new subscriptions during that month, and then announced that the woman in question was his own wife.

• • •

One of the easiest jobs in the world is being an editor, according to the Chicago Journal of Commerce. All he has to do, that paper says, is sit at his desk twelve hours a day and straighten out such stuff as the following, which comes in from time to time:

"Mrs. Jones of Cactus Creek let an oyster slip last week and cut herself in the pantry."

"A mischievous lad of Punkville threw a cat into the well. Mr. Pike in the alley last Tuesday."

"Tom Brown climbed on the roof of his home last week looking for a leak and fell, striking himself on the back porch."

"While Harold Green was escorting Miss Viola Wise from the church social last Saturday, a savage dog attacked them and bit Harold on the public square."

"While Farmer Frank was harnessing a colt last Saturday the colt whirled around and kicked him near his corn crib."

• • •

James Russell Lowell, I believe it was who said: "Be not the last to lay the old aside, nor the first by whom the new is tried." Well, anyway, Jeff Sanders, colored, of near Rustburg, can almost lay claim to being the last to use the old-fashioned yoke of oxen. Jeff was in Appomattox yesterday. He parked his oxen back of Burge's while he sold us how he had done all his farming, and of how long it took him to haul a load of sumac to prospect.

• • •

We shall not add to the Huey long comment other than to remark that the only Appomattox story connected with him. Two local politicians were in Washington and a friend offered to show them anything or one they'd like to see. The pair asked to see Huey Long. The second added: "And I'd like to see his fellow they call the Kingfish."

• • •

The company promoting it is on, but all that keeps the Tuesday night amateur program at a Lynchburg theatre from being a perfect flop is the orchestra.

• • •

Unless golf interest picks up at Appomattox there won't be enough local players to play in the Southside amateur tournament when it comes here two years hence.

• • •

Business building scheme: Have Uncle Sam greatly increase the printing of two dollar bills. Folks always rush to spend them.

• • •

On second thought, I'll add more men Huey Long's death. He was a Baptist. He was a seventh child. He was named Huey Pierce after a father, who survives. But here the important things: at the age 19 he went on the road selling for the printing shop of the Winn-Southern Sentinel, a Louisanna weekly newspaper. There he learned that important truth: the power of printed word. He never forgot that truth, and it was largely responsible for all he ever accomplished. He kept his name and his ideas before the public always. The power of the printed word did the rest. We must remember that religion, government, schools, science, everything else including any business enterprise you can think of, owes all failures until the power of printed word gave them life. Until Bibles could be printed, Christianity become a major force in the life of the masses. There was no semblance of justice before the days of printing press. Business was done by barter and credit until advertising created some. And until well, the Congressional Record will be dull now.

County Schools To Open Friday

Several New Teachers Attend Annual Meeting Here Today

Public schools of Appomattox county will open tomorrow. The annual teachers meeting is being held today at the local high school.

Supt. J. A. Burke urges all parents to enroll their children at the beginning of the session. However, he warns that if there are any who have in any way been exposed to infantile paralysis that they be withheld until they consult their physician.

Several new teachers will greet the pupils tomorrow. The most important change is the replacing of R. W. Wilkins, who resigned as agricultural instructor, by Georg, D. Pollard, of King William county.

At the teachers meeting here, today, superintenedent J. A. Burke and others focused attention upon new classroom and curriculum methods.

John Wolford Killed When Hit By Truck In Latest Car Tragedy In This County

No Charges Against James Marshall Colored Driver Of Truck

John Wolford, 58, Appomattox county farmer, was died Monday morning from injuries received when he stepped in front of a truck driven by James Marshall colored. A verdict of accidental death was returned by the coroner. It is reported that Wolford left home by 3:30. Marshall is said to have told authorities that he saw Wolford get off his horse and walk along the side of the road until the truck was about to pass. Suddenly, the driver said, he threw himself into the middle of the highway and he was struck before the truck could be brought to a stop. The horse was not injured. Marshall had in his truck a pack of hounds belonging to Dr. W. O Tune, of Brookneal, which he was taking to Buckingham for a hunt. Dr. Tune followed behind the truck in his car. He arrived upon the scene a few minutes after the accident and administered medical aid to Wolford.

He was removed to his home, but died within half an hour.

Wolford is survived by his widow and a daughter and a son, who lives at Rural Retreat.

Pollard To Teach Here

George D. Pollard, of King William county, has been appointed vocational agriculture instructor for the Appomattox and Pamplin high schools, and arrived today to assume his duties. He succeeds R. W. Wilkins, who resigned in order to accept a position with the soil erosion service. Mr. Pollard is a graduate of V. P. I., and holds the B. S. and M. S. degrees and had a year of agricultural economics instructorship at V. P. I., where he also attended summer school this past session. He is also a practical farmer, having had five years erperience.

Miss Mardane Anderson Hurt In Fall From Horse Wed.

Miss Mardane Anderson, daughter of B. G. Anderson, was seriously injured here yesterday morning when she fell from a horse she was riding. The accident took place on Church St., near Liberty Baptist church.

It is presumed that horse slipped and fell when rounding the church corner, throwing Miss Anderson.

She was rushed to the Virginia Baptist Hospital. She failed to regain consciousness yesterday and this morning the hospital reported a "no change" in her condition. A concussion is feared.

Miss Anderson had planned to leave here Saturday for the University of Virginia.

Prepare For County Fair

The second annual Five County Fair, with a greatly enlarged premium list and expanded exhibition classes, is scheduled to be held at the old Farmville Furniture Factory site September 16—21, with bigger and better attractions than ever before, says the management.

R. B. Crawford, general manager of the second year, together with an able corps of co-operative assistents, is leaving no stone unturned to give the people of the five counties the best and most educational fair possible. He has had considerable experience in organizing and conducting fairs before, taking over the generalship of the five county fair organization last season, and is giving the best of his ability and experience to make this embryo undertaking the nucleus of a growing and permanent success.

The exhibit classes are divided into two main divisions: the farm crops and home departments, with over $1,100.00 in premiums offered.

E. F. Striplin, Prince Edward county agent, is superintendent of the farm crops division, assisted by county agents H. E. McSwain, E. W. Carson, R. B. Hudgins and C. J. Turner.

Miss Myra Reese, Prince Edward county home demonstration, is superintendent of the home department consisting of the demonstration of home products, subsistence garden, home economics, school exhibit, 4-H club exhibits and needlework.

A colored fair will be held as a section of the Five County Fair, with J. W. Lancaster as superintendent.

The fair was organized in 1934 for the purpose of promoting the best interests of the sections serves, with special emphasis on the development of agricultural conditions of this territory.

The Five County Fair is not operated for profit, and is therefore not a stock company that makes money for individuals. It is made possible by donations from the Boards of Supervisors, the Town of Farmville, and various business men throughout the counties.

None of the officials receive compensation for their services, and every dollar collected above the cost of operation goes toward building a bigger and better fair each year.

There will be a display of fireworks each night. Weaf's World Wonder Show has been selected for the attraction each night to furnish the holiday attraction the entire fair week.

Rush Work On New CCC Plant Here As Boys Begin to Arrive

First Group of 95 Came In Yesterday Afternoon; Living In Tents

SPEED WORK ON BARRACKS

Well Being Dug To supply Water; Boys To Aid Soil Erosion Project

With the arrival today of an additional 100 men to join the 95 who came in yesterday, the new CCC Camp just outside Appomattox took on big time aspects.

The 95 boys arriving yesterday were transferred here from camp at Hot Springs. They are in charge of Captain Phillips.

Barracks for the camp will not be completed for at least a month yet, so the boys are living in tents. The first group lost no time yesterday afternoon in getting up tents and all were snugly quartered by night.

A large force, mostly local labor, is at work on the barracks. There will be some ten buildings at the camp when completed.

Work on a well to supply water for the camp began yesterday. It is being sunk by C. H. Davis, of Martinsville. The first afternoon's work saw it go down 21 feet.

This camp will supply CCC boys for the new soil erosion project on Wreck Island creek. The camp is located opposite Burge's Service Station No. 2, on route 24.

Another CCC camp is located at Spout Spring.

Seek Sewerage System

The Appomattox Town Council has applied to the federal W. P. A. for a loan and grant of $25,000 for the purpose of putting in a town sewerage system here. This will be, if it is successful, the largest individual federal relief project undertaken in Appomattox and will be the answer to one of the most vexing local problems, that of sewerage disposal. The project would give employment to a large number of men.

Reemployment Office Is Closed

Information was received here this morning that the reemployment office here at the court house had been discontinued and that henceforth it would be merged with the Lynchburg office.

Last Baseball Game Of Season Sat.

Manager John Curtis Caldwell, of the Appomattox baseball team announced today that the local club would play Lovingston here this Saturday. It had previously been reported that they would face the N. and W. team from Lynchburg.

He also announced that this is to be the last game of the season and a large crowd is urged to give the boys a final sendoff.

Woodrow Williams and W. T. Smith are expected to join the locals for this game.

Williams is Appomattox county's only ball player with professional experience, and will add punch to the home team if he plays.

Looks Over Damage To Leaf Crop

Mott Robertson, of the Bookers tactactaeta eta tarsdsdadg hrdlunh ad Warehouse was in Appomattox yesterday to look over tobacco crops and see what damage the record rains of last week had done to the leaf.

It is estimated that 75 per cent of the crop had been cut and housed before the deluge of water which visited this section last week. This portion of the crop is still in good condition.

The Lynchburg tobacco markets are scheduled to open on November 12 this year.
